Graffiti Classics

Festival Spiegeltent - Tuesday 29 October

Written by George Hillier

The Graffiti Classics are a multi-talented quartet of musicians - two violins, a viola and a cello. They are instrumentalists, wonderful singers, dancers and comedians. Sometimes all at the same time! Be prepared to sing, clap and laugh your head off! They love to involve the audience.

I saw them at the Spiegeltent on Wednesday night. I think the Spiegeltent was the ideal venue for this show because it is the perfect size; not too small and not too big. They performed a combination of well known classical music, folk and even opera. All with a twist such as Sabre Dance, Danny Boy, The Drunken Sailor's Hornpipe and O Sole Mio (Neapolitan Song).

My favourite tune was The Flight of the Bumble Bee because it was played like I have never heard it before! They played mostly all together in a group but also some solo highlights. The audience was very shy at the beginning of the show, but within minutes we were laughing and clapping along to the tunes. By the end my mum was crying with laughter! People young and old would enjoy the show. You can't help but smile.
